

Note to File: Michael L. Riordan: invention of the term Beijingism. For upload to Internet Archive on 27 January 2025

For the Record:

I have invented a new term: Beijingism. My definition: An ideology in which the dictatorial authority centered in Beijing has the right, mandate and historical justification to use its geopolitical, technological, military and economic power to make any and all nations and peoples subservient to it. Beijingism is an extended version of the imperialism of classical China, reinvented for a modern world in which technology has shrunk distances and made all nations potential vassal states, regardless of their geographic location. The foremost priority of the ideology is to keep the dictatorial regime in power, at any cost.
